

FUNERAL INSTRUCTIONS

Some Pastoral Considerations

For Christians, death, though real, is only an incident. Beyond death lies our reasonable hope of resurrection to life that is both dynamic and eternal in God's nearer presence. It is this Easter faith which enables Christians to contemplate their own mortality and ultimate departure from this earthly life calmly and without fear. In this spirit this form is offered to Church people with the hope that it may assist them in providing appropriate directions for their own funeral services and for the disposition of their mortal remains while they are in health.

It is a courtesy to provide to our survivors the personal data for which this form makes provision. Further, we show our love and concern for them by providing, in advance, clear instructions to guide them in making our funeral arrangements. This form attempts to provide, in one place, the information that will be requested during the hours and days immediately after death.

The Church teaches that the burial of the dead should be simple, reverent, with thanksgiving for the life of the deceased and affirmation of the comforting hope of resurrection for the bereaved. Elaborate and expensive displays focusing on the casket/corpse are inappropriate.

Before filling out this form, it is helpful to discuss it with your priest. There are a number of possible alternatives, both for the funeral and for the disposing of the body, which are in keeping with Christian tradition. Your priest or deacon can clarify them for you.

It is an increasingly common practice for persons to make their own funeral arrangements. Most funeral directors will be happy to keep this form on file.

You should make copies of this form available to your next of kin or to the person or persons likely to be responsible for arrangements after your death. You may change this statement at any time and should, from time to time in the future, bring it up to date.

Every Christian adult, regardless of age, should leave funeral instructions and should have a Will disposing of his or her temporal goods.

In time of serious illness, every Christian should summon a priest for comfort in illness and for reconciliation with God before departing this life.

STATEMENT FOR THE GUIDANCE OF MY FAMILY AT THE TIME OF MY DEATH

I believe in the resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting.

Having lived in the Faith of the One, Holy, Catholic, and Apostolic Church, it is my desire that I should be buried in accordance with her traditions. I have, therefore, in consultation with the Priest of my Parish, expressed my desires for my funeral arrangements, and these wishes are contained in the attached statement.

Where specific pre-arrangements have been made, they are recorded herein.

A copy of this statement is on file in my parish church. Additional copies have been given to:

It is my hope that this statement will spare my family as may be possible in their time of grief
